The latter attended accompanied by their wives, sweethearts and friends, about seventy-five people going over. An excellent dinner of Mammoth residents responded to the invitation extended. The hosts were Messrs. Hans Hassel, D. A. Deane, J. J. Stacey, William Dawson, Chid Packard and Colonel John T. Hayes, and the gentlemen acquitted themselves in a most creditable manner. The house was profusely decorated with the national colors and the purple and white of the order. The entertainment began with the opening part of the minstrel show which was given by the Elks in Eureka in March, and upon the conclusion of the show supper was announced. The long tables which stretched across the hall were laden with delicacies that would have done credit to a city caterer, and there was most everything to drink, in generous quantity. After supper several humorous speeches were made, and Harry Joseph of Salt Lake and Professor Holston of Eureka favored the guests with piano selections. The evening was concluded with a dance, and it was "time for breakfast" when the Eureka contingent reached home.
